Introduction

This training programme aims to provide you with the essential analytical tools required for understanding the investment funds sector and its potential impact on the broader financial system. It is jointly organised by the European Securities Markets Authority (ESMA), the European Systemic Risk Board (ESRB), and the Florence School of Banking and Finance, providing academic rigour and up-to-date insights into the internal policy discussion.

The training programme will involve an in-depth exploration of the aspects of the EU investment fund sector through a series of lectures, group discussions, and practical exercises. You will acquire skills in the monitoring, mitigation and prevention of risks and vulnerabilities associated with investment funds, including from a financial stability perspective. As part of this, you will develop an understanding of the role of stress testing and associated stress testing methodologies. The programme will conclude with an interactive panel discussion of leading experts and practitioners, who will share their insights.
